LOSSES BY FIRE IN PAINTSVILLE.

Several Small Buildings on the Main Street Destroyed by Flames Sunday Night.

Paintsville was visited by a fire Sunday night that destroyed four barber shops, two restaurants, a saddle shop, photograph gallery, two clothing stores and damaged slightly the Paintsville bank and the residence of Mrs. Edna J. Kirk.

Paintsville has no fire apparatus but the work done by the bucket brigade was most effective.

The blaze started at 11:30 o'clock in the clothing store of J. P. Deal, presumably from a gas light, and before it had spent its fury at two o'clock next morning had destroyed the store of Mr. Deal, the barber shops of Montgomery, Del Preston, Forrest Preston and M. K. Williams, two restaurants of R. W. Daniels, the saddle shop of J. S. Daniel, the photo gallery of Ward Bros., and the store of Nathan Abbott.

The bank building, directly across the street from where the fire originated, caught fire twice but the blaze was extinguished before serious damage was done. The telephone wires were badly damaged and the service put out of commission for the morning.

The property burned was owned by the heirs of W. W. Brown and Frank Preston. The buildings were frame, one and two stories, several being no more than "shacks," hence the loss was not so heavy. It is estimated at from four to five thousand dollars, part of the contents of the buildings having been carried to safety.

FILLED MANY VACANCIES.

The death of Senator Bradley recalls the fact that Gov. McCreary, during his present term, has filled by appointment vacancies in an unusual number of important offices. When this was suggested to him he counted up ten Circuit Judges and two Judges of the Court of Appeals he has appointed in the last two and a half years. He appointed Judge J. B. Lannan from the circuit bench in the Thirty-second district to succeed John M. Lanning, who resigned in the Sixth appellate district, and appointed Judge M. M. Redwine to succeed Judge Hannah; he appointed Judge Clem Nunn to succeed his father, Judge J. T. Nunn, resigned from the First appellate district he appointed Judge J. T. Hodge, Wm. M. Smith and J. M. Robertson to newly created judgeships in Kenton and Jefferson counties and the Thirty-fifth district, respectively, and reappointed Judge Robertson when the election of last November was invalidated by the Court of Appeals; he appointed Judge J. R. Layman to fill the vacancy in the Ninth district caused by the death of Judge W. S. Chelf; Judge R. L. Smith to fill the vacancy in the First caused by the death of Judge R. J. Bugg; Judge Hugh Riddell to fill the vacancy in the Twenty-third district caused by the death of Judge D. B. Redwine; Judge John S. Rhin in the Second district to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge W. P. Sandidge, and Judge W. A. Young in the Twenty-first district to succeed his brother, Judge Allie W. Young, who resigned.

COL. WORTHINGTON DIES.

Col. W. J. Worthington, aged 82 years, Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky during the Bradley administration, died at his home near Greenvale early last Friday morning.

Several months ago he had a serious attack of grip, which occasioned his family and friends some alarm, but he recovered and was in reasonable good health for one of his advanced age, when he was again taken ill with a general breakdown, and grew gradually weaker until the end came.

Col. Worthington is survived by three children. His second and last wife, who died about two years ago, was a daughter of Dr. Stephen York, and had many relatives in this county.

When twenty-nine years old, he formed Co. B. of the 22nd Kentucky Volunteers and went to Camp Swagard, now Wurtland, Ky., as captain on Lincoln's second call for volunteers. He was advanced to Major and then to Lieut. Colonel.

Col. Worthington was buried Sunday on an eminence which overlooked his late residence. A very large number attended the obsequies which were conducted by the Rev. C. B. Plummer, pastor of the Louisa M. E. Church.

HOUSE PARTY.

Mrs. John Ratcliff, of Huntington, has been entertaining a house party at her home on Sixth avenue. This ladies have been attending the Sunday meetings, and among them were Mrs. Jas. Q. Laokay, Mrs. T. J. Snyder, Mrs. George Vinson and daughter Helen, of Louisa, and Miss Anna Poage, of Ashland. Mrs. Ratcliff is an ideal hostess and all are having the most delightful time.—Ashland Independent.

PIONEER CARTER CITIZEN DEAD.

Mr. James Rucker, a prominent pioneer citizen of Carter county, died Saturday night after a brief illness. Mr. Rucker was 82 years of age, and was a man held in the highest esteem by all. He was a great Bible student and one of the best read men in the western part of the State.

BILLY SUNDAY'S SERMONS. CONVERT ANSE HATFIELD.

Huntington, W. Va.—The Rev. Billy Sunday will umpire a baseball game tomorrow afternoon between the Huntington and Newport teams.

Large delegations from the surrounding mountain towns of this State and from Kentucky continue to pour into the tabernacle meetings of the evangelist. Odd Fellows, Elks, Miners and other fraternal orders are also prominent in the audiences.

Conspicuous among the old mountaineers who "hit the trail" was an old, grizzled, bearded man, whose name was on every lip of the State, whose deeds were told at night around the blazing hearth of the mountain log houses, whose name was used to frighten young children—Anse Hatfield, the one-time leader of the Hatfield-McCoy feud. He is an uncle of the present Governor of the State. He will go back to his mountain home to again become a leader, this time under the banner of the cross.

The mountaineers, young and old, come to the meetings on horseback, in every kind of vehicle, and many walk.

His sermon on "Amusements" was preached to a crowd that filled the tabernacle to overflowing long before the opening hour of the services.

The theater, saloon and the dance were denounced, and he said cards and dancing were worse spiritual enemies of this church than the saloon.

"If you keep the cards, throw the Bible in the alley; if you keep the Bible, throw the cards in the alley," he declared.

"Worldliness has crept into the church, and one of the most infectious diseases is the dance. I loathe the tango, the hunchy hug and the other passion-producing dances that wringed out of the pit of hell, with all the fire within me.

"I have more respect for a saloon-keeper than I have for the dancing teacher. The preacher that keeps his mouth shut on the subject is too big a coward to keep his job. If you are bound to dance, church members, then get out of the church. I wouldn't drag the church of God across the ballroom floor."

Calls continue to pour in upon the evangelist. Delegations from Cincinnati, St. Louis and the far West were here urging him to come to their cities. Telegrams come from all over the country. One from Ralph Conner, at Winnipeg, asked Sunday to hold a series of meetings there.

In an interview, Mr. Sunday said: "Calls are coming from all parts of the country, but the Lord seems to have called me for the East. The doors of the East are opening to me, especially in the large cities; Philadelphia, Camden, Wilmington and Baltimore want me, and I feel that my work lies in the East. From here we will go to Colorado Springs, then I will go to the East in the fall."

The meetings have been too large for the tabernacle, and Mr. Peacock, the assistant to Mr. Sunday, has held overflow meetings in a nearby church. The meetings for men have been attended in greater numbers than any other, thousands being turned away because they could not get in.

A woman in silks and jewels came to the evangelist in tears and asked him to save her dissolute husband. She was told to pray for an hour on the Sabbath. The husband is among the converts.

Billy Sunday was fagged out Saturday and Musical Director Rodeheaver took charge of the afternoon meeting for the children. He entertained them with sleight of hand.

NEW PIPE LINE IN THIS COUNTY.

Independent Company Laying an Oil Line to Get Fair Price for Oil.

The first car load of pipe for the new pipe line to be laid from the oil field to the C. & O. railroad at Potter or Fuller has been received and is being distributed along the route. The right of way has been secured and the work of laying the line will start at the earliest possible date. This line will start from the wells of the Big Blaine Oil Company in the Yatesville and Fallsburg territory. The oil will be sold to a Marietta, O., refinery at Pennsylvania oil prices, which are considerably higher than the Standard is paying our people. It will be shipped in tank cars. There are already nine tanks full of oil ready to be run as soon as the line is ready.

The last well to be completed was that on the Wm. Clark place. It was shot Tuesday and the indications are that it will make ten barrels or more per day. It belongs to the Ohio Fuel. Another well will be started soon on the Wm. Savage farm about 200 feet from the Lackey line.

The well being drilled on the Hackworth & Burns farm by the Ohio Fuel is now about 800 feet deep.

John A. Sheppard & Co., of Huntington, are drilling a well on Tabor's Creek, W. Va., about two and a half miles north of Louisa. A depth of 1200 feet has been reached and a good showing of oil was found in the salt sand, also in the top of the big lime.

BOYD COUNTY CASES AFFIRMED.

The Court of Appeals has affirmed the Boyd Circuit Court in the cases of Job Iron & Steel Company vs. Layne; Adkins vs. Stuart; Russell vs. City of Ashland.

SUIT FOR SHARE OF LARGE ESTATE

Brought by Mrs. Mary Eloise Hughes Smith vs. Husband's Relatives.

Huntington, W. Va., May 21.—That suit has been entered in the orphan's court of Pennsylvania at Uniontown, to secure for Mrs. Mary Eloise Hughes Smith and her son, Lucien T. Smith, whose father was a Titanic victim, for $600,000, their share of the estate of Lucien P. Smith, was the information given out at the home of Congressman James A. Hughes, in West moreland last night. In addition, Congressman Hughes said, an allowance of $300 a month for Lucien Smith, the second, had been asked.

After suit was entered yesterday, Mr. Hughes took out letters of administration filing a bond of $20,000 in the Citizens Trust Company of Uniontown, being the guarantor.

Arguments in the case will be made June 8. Attorney Ruben O. Moore, of Philadelphia, representing the widow of the Titanic tragedy and her son, who was born several months after the sinking of the great ocean liner, Judge Works presides on the Orphans' Court bench.

Mr. Hughes said last night the suit is to secure for Mrs. Smith her share of the estate, or one-third of $600,000, the other two-thirds being the share of Young Lucian Smith.

According to dispatches from Uniontown, the relatives of the late Lucian Smith claim he left no estate. Information was given out that he had an allowance of $5000 a year during his life. His father is dead, the mother being Mrs. Anna A. Smith.

ENTERTAINMENT TO BE GIVEN FRIDAY EVENING.

What promises to be a very pleasing and delightful entertainment will be given at Masonic Hall this (Friday) evening. It will be presented by the Young People's Missionary Society, of the M. E. Church South, under the direction of Mrs. R. L. Vinson. Some well known amateurs of Louisa will present a couple of amusing plays, "An Economical Boomerang," a one-act piece, and "In the Absence of Susan," a most laughable comedy in three acts. There will also be some special features, notably some singing by Mrs. Lillian Strange Warner, of Huntington, a guest of Mrs. B. M. Keith. There should be a large attendance on this occasion. The object of the entertainment is a worthy one, and the participants in this programme are capable, and the prices of admission are very moderate, being 15c, 25c, and 35c. Tickets will be on sale all day Friday at Conley's store.

DECORATION DAY AT BUCHANAN CHAPEL.

CHILDREN'S DAY SERVICES AT THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH.

An interesting program for Children's Day will be rendered Sunday night, May 31st, at the M. E. Church South, Louisa. The little folks and teachers are working hard to properly prepare themselves for the occasion, and it is safe to promise that it will be worth your while to be present. Seven o'clock is the hour.

STABBING AT WEBB.

An affray at Webb, W. Va., Saturday night last had serious results. Quite a number were engaged in the row and at least three of them were cut and stabbed. Two sons of Ed Meek, Pat and Ed, Jr., and Frank Maynard, who lives at Camp Creek, were wounded. Pat Meek was stabbed four times in the arms and shoulder, Ed was cut in the back and shoulder, and Maynard was cut on the hand. The fight began at church and booze as well as blood flowed freely. Dr. Wellman, of this city, went up on No. 4 and dressed the wounds.

ANOTHER BIG ELKHORN COAL COMPANY.

Clarence W. Watson Has Plans Perfect for Further Development.

It is contemplated to organize another coal company for the Elkhorn region of Kentucky, the announcement appearing in a notification to the stockholders of the Elkhorn Fuel Co. Clarence W. Watson, president, New York. This announcement states that the stockholders of the Elkhorn Fuel Co. are privileged to subscribe to the unsold preferred and common shares of the Elkhorn Mining Corporation, lessee of 20,000 acres of coal land from the Elkhorn Fuel Co. President Watson's circular letter to the stockholders is, in part, as follows:

"The development of the company's mining operations, upon which over $1,700,000 has already been spent, exceeds in rapidity any similar developments. There are now 13 mines opened, 1100 houses under construction, the majority of which have been completed and occupied, and 11 tipples built and under construction. Of the $3,000,000 par value of preferred and $3,750,000 par value of common stock of the Elkhorn Mining Corporation, $851,200 of preferred and $1,064,000 of common stock have already been subscribed for and the sale of the remainder has been underwritten. There is now under contemplation the formation of a new company to acquire the properties of the Elkhorn Mining Corporation and certain other properties. In view of this possibility it has been determined to offer to the stockholders of the Elkhorn Fuel Co. a further opportunity to subscribe, subject to allotment, for the stocks of the Elkhorn Mining Corporation so underwritten at $100 for one share of preferred and one and one-quarter shares of common stock, payable 10 per cent. 10 days after notice of allotment and 10 per cent. monthly thereafter.—Manufacturers Record.

INDEX OIL & GAS COMPANY GETS GASER.

This Index Oil & Gas Company's well which is being drilled on the W. T. Phillips farm, was about 45 feet in the sand Wednesday afternoon and is already producing a nice flow of gas. The volume is thought to be equal to the Caskey well No. 1, and better than the McClain well on Elk Fork before they were shot. This flow of gas was struck at the top of what is supposed to be the Clinton sand. Without mishap the Hudson river sand will be reached today and the operators have strong hopes that oil in paying quantities will be found.

If nothing further should develop they have a nice gas well. If no oil is struck the well will probably be shot in the hope that it will increase the flow of gas. The promoters are highly pleased with the outlook and further development in this field will follow as soon as arrangements can be made.

There is no doubt but that there is oil in the territory adjacent to the Burns well No. 1, and the Neal valley well, which were both producers and from which oil would have been marketed if a market had been accessible.—Licking Valley Courier.

SANDY HOOK VS. WRIGLEY.

On May 17th Wrigley baseball team played Sandy Hook on the latter grounds and the game was one of great interest. The score was 5-6 in favor of Sandy Hook and the following game between these two teams which was played at Wrigley was one of the best games ever played by amateurs in the mountains. The score was 3-4 in favor of Wrigley. The two lines are now tied and much interest given in the third game to be played at Sandy Hook at some early date.

Batteries first game: Whitt and Lyon, Sandy Hook; Burnett and Welsh, Wrigley. Batteries, second game: Whitt and Lyon, Sandy Hook; Ellington and Ramey, Wrigley.

DECORATION DAY.

On tomorrow, May 30th, will be observed the annually recurring observation of Decoration Day, the time when the never-to-be-forgotten graves of our loved and lost ones are graced with the richest buds and blossoms of the earth accords. It is a beautiful custom thus to pay affectionate tribute to the memory of those who have left us. Let us ever hold the day in remembrance and lay upon the silent resting places of the dead the tokens which show that they live in memory.

Interment was made near the home on Tuesday morning, following appropriate services conducted by Revs. Hewlett and Copley, of this city. Mrs. Diamond died of tuberculosis, and is survived by her husband and three children. She was a Christian, a good wife and devoted mother, and is mourned by many relatives and friends.

BILLIE SUNDAY EXCURSION.

The special train excursion to Huntington Thursday of this week was not such a howling success as was expected. Pikeville sent only twelve persons, Prestonsburg fifteen and Paintsville thirteen. Louisa came to the rescue with 85.

AN EMPIRE OF WEALTH PRACTICALLY UNKNOWN.

Between Fleming, Letcher county, and Jackson, Breathitt county, there are numerous mining developments, and yet that territory has hardly begun to be known. Along the L. & E. lie thousands of acres owned by the Elkhorn Fuel Company, and thousands owned by various companies that will soon be consolidated into the Slemo Company. To Kentuckians the Slemo Company is one of the most interesting and to Kentucky will in time become one of the most important of all the coal companies in the state.

The various companies which will be comprised in the Slemo Consolidated would have already brought together had it not been for the long illness and the death of John Mayo. In this company will be put the property of some 31,000 acres owned by the Haley Company; some 30,000 acres owned by the Slemo Company; some 25,000 acres owned by the Kentucky River Development Company; and some 5,000 acres owned by the Henry Company.

Important and valuable as are the properties owned by the Elkhorn Fuel Company even that company owns no property more valuable, nor underlain by more important veins of coal than will be owned by the Slemo Consolidated Company. Already operations have begun on some of the properties owned by this company, and as rapidly as the railroad can furnish facilities, and advantageous lease be made, thousands of acres of the land owned by the Slemo Company will be developed. What are now desolate waste places will within a few years become thriving mining towns; streams along which now there is rarely heard the sound of human voices, all within a few years will become the abiding places of thousands of miners.

If the people of Lexington, and of the Blue Grass realize what wealth lies under these mountains, what the growth of the next few years will be, there will be the closest ties formed between that section and the Blue Grass, from which ties the residents of each section will gain large profit.—Lexington Herald.

BROKE HIS ARM.

Lon, the 13-year-old son of William Buggs, who lives on the Point, not far from Louisa, while plowing with a disc plow Wednesday fell and broke his left arm between the elbow and wrist. Dr. Wellman set the fractured limb.

Here we have another object lesson to the rich youth of Louisa to keep away from work. But most of them have already learned the lesson.

SENATOR W. O. BRADLEY DIES AT WASHINGTON.

Kentucky's Republican Member of the Upper House of Congress.

Senator William O. Bradley, the senior Senator from Kentucky, died near 10 o'clock Saturday night in Washington after a brief illness which began with an acute attack of indigestion. He had just concluded a trip to Kentucky and had announced that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself.

The funeral services were held in Frankfort Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. John G. South, daughter of the dead senator. The interment took place in the State cemetery. Governor McCreary made the following remarks about Senator Bradley:

"Senator Bradley was an able lawyer and an eloquent speaker and an acknowledged leader in the Republican party. He was perhaps the ablest man in the Republican party in Kentucky. From the standpoint of a Republican, most of his Republican associates in the United States Senate seemed to regard him as one of the ablest and best equipped United States Senators. For a number of years he seemed to control his party in Kentucky. He was a genial man, and will be missed by his friends and political associates."

LAWRENCE COUNTY FAIR ASSOCIATION.

Dates and Plans Announced for Fair This Year, and Committee Appointed.

The Lawrence County Fair Association met at the office of H. C. Sullivan on May 16th and passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That in view of the manifest interest in the Fair held by Lawrence and Wayne counties in 1913, and the wish expressed by those present that we should hold another in 1914, and we are desirous of so doing on the condition of being assured of sufficient financial assistance from our successful farmers and business men, hotel keepers, lawyers, doctors, etc., to enable us to defray the expenses necessary therefor.

We had a good fair last year which cost us time, labor and money, and it is necessary to have the money to pay for the premiums that many exhibitors are clamorous for; and for the purpose of ascertaining in advance of any notice of the time of holding, will ask all persons who are desirous of participating the fair to meet with us at the city hall in Louisa, May 25th, 1914, on Tuesday, June 2nd, the present committee and all others who feel interested are requested to meet at the court house in Louisa, at one o'clock. We wish the presence of our Wayne county friends on that occasion, as well as any others from the several counties in the Big Sandy valley, and endeavor to form an organization that will foster and perpetuate the fair, whose chief aim is to move on the intellects of the people for better agriculture, horticulture and improved stock in this section. It is hoped the spirit for better conditions along these lines will prompt many to write our secretary in case they can not be present.

We are assured by the School Superintendent that the school fair will join with us, and we hope through our farm demonstrator, E. S. Kegley, to have the corn clubs and tomato clubs to unite with us. If agreeable the dates will be October 8-9-10.

Our enterprising editor of the Big Sandy News assisted us greatly last year and assures us of his full endorsement of our efforts to try again this year for a fair.

If our merchants will follow those who assisted us last year we can have another great exhibition at our county seat.

We will never forget the kindness of the women in the past and we expect their assistance in all future fairs.

Remember, the time is coming for action and the result of this preliminary call may settle the matter. We are willing to work or assist others in this work, surrendering our places cheerfully.

SWEET CLOVER.

In view of the wide interest now being taken in the raising of sweet clover the following from the Department of Agriculture is timely and instructive:

The Kansas Experiment Station in a recent publication makes it plain that sweet clover, a hitherto neglected plant, displaced as a pernicious weed, has very considerable agricultural value. It is stated that "as a soil improver it is unexcelled; and as a forage green manure or allowed to remain in building up the humus content, age crop it can be utilized to good advantage where alfalfa or red clover can not be successfully grown."

Attention is called to the fact that "there are several varieties of sweet clover, of which the common white clover and the large biennial yellow sweet clover are the most important. The white variety is generally to be preferred for farm purposes, although the biennial yellow is sometimes preferred where hay production is desired." Sweet clover is adapted to a wide range of soils, and while it does best on good soils, it will make a satisfactory growth on very poor soils.

Grown on good soil and properly handled it makes a fair quality of hay which may in many cases be substituted with advantage for the more valuable alfalfa and clover hays. In actual nutritive constituents it is practically equal to these. It makes an excellent pasture for cattle, sheep, horses, and hogs, and for this purpose may be profitably grown on very poor and rough land.

For quick results in improving the soil sweet clover is superior to most other crops. Its ability to thrive well on soils lacking in humus or otherwise badly run down makes it especially adapted for this purpose. Like alfalfa, cowpeas, and other legumes, it has the ability to obtain nitrogen from the air by means of the nitrogen-gathering bacteria which live in tubercles on the roots of the plants, thus adding much nitrogen to the soil in which it grows. When plowed under on the land this crop is a very efficient, of the soil. The large roots, which penetrate deeply, break up the lower layers of the soil and add much humus thereto when they decay, thus improving the physical condition of the soil to a considerable depth below the depth of plowing. Sandy as well as heavy clay and hardpan soils, which would not otherwise produce satisfactory crops, may be so improved in texture by growing sweet clover for a few years that they become quite productive.

A weed has been defined as a plant which has not yet found its proper use. In view of present knowledge of its possibilities sweet clover can no longer be regarded as a weed.

MEXICO A GREAT NATION UNDER THE AZTECS.

Why the Aztecs left their northern home is not known, even in legend, but they were instigated to their wanderings, tradition says, by their fabled war god, Huitzilopochtli, or Mexitli, from which came the name "Mexico," or "Azteca," by which these people called themselves. From the beginning of the Tenth to the beginning of the Thirteenth century Anno Domino, this tribe journeyed and sojourned on its southward way, from valley to valley, from lake to lake, from Chapala to Putzucaro, and thence to Tula, the old Toltec capital. Once more dispersed, they wandered on, and, guided by their oracle, reached their final resting place at Tenochtitlan.

In company with Teotihuacan at Texcoco, and Papantla, in the State of Vera Cruz, Cholula is ascribed to the Toltecs. The Toltecs were a prehistoric people of Mexico and Central America. To them the Aztecs and the Mayas ascribed their arts and all those ancient monuments whose origin they did not know. According to some writers, the Toltecs are fabulous. The Aztecs are so called from Aztlan, the mythical northern land of the Seven Caves, from which they migrated to the south to set up a powerful empire in the valley of Mexico.

Here, for the first time, the Spanish explorers in their wanderings had come across an organized nation with an advanced civilization and policy of its own. Here in the land of the Aztec federation three potent States, with vast dependencies from which countless hordes of warriors might be drawn, were ready to stand shoulder to shoulder and resist the claims of the white demi-gods mounted on strange beasts, who came upon giant sea birds from the unknown, beyond the waste of waters. But the fatal prophecy of the coming of the avenging white god, Quetzalcoatl, to destroy the Aztec power, paralyzed the arm and brain of Montezuma and rendered him a prey to the diplomacy, the daring and the valor of Cortes.

THE KENTUCKY MOUNTAINEER.

(Collier's Weekly.)

Paris, Tex.—Dear Collier's: I have just finished reading Mr. Bruce Barton's "Children of the Feudists," in Collier's. I was much interested, because I am a Kentuckian and am quite well acquainted with the mountain country, having spent several years in that section of the State, during which time I traveled over all of it.

While reading Mr. Barton's article it occurred to me that some of his statements might be capable of conveying a rather erroneous impression to readers not familiar with the Kentucky mountains. May I, therefore, take the liberty of calling your attention to some points in Mr. Barton's sketch which do not "read" with my own experience?

Mr. Barton states that the mountaineer's clothes and those of his family are made of "homespun" woven on a hand loom by his wife. This was more "uncivilized" than many of the "crackers" of Florida, the "cujons" of Louisiana, the "hill billies" of Arkansas and Missouri, the "mill people" of Massachusetts, Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas, the "new-made Americans" of Western Pennsylvania or the "East Siders" of New York.

That's all. And let me add that one reason why I am always interested in Collier's is the fact that you so frequently say things with which I don't agree.

PUT SULPHUR ON AN ITCHING SKIN AND END ECZEMA AT ONCE

Says this old-time Eczema remedy is applied like cold cream.

Any irritation or breaking out on the face, arms, legs or body when accompanied by itching, or when the skin is dry and feverish, can be readily overcome by applying a little bold-sulphur cream, says a noted dermatologist.

He states that bold-sulphur instantly allays the angry itching and irritation and soothes and heals the Eczema, right up leaving the skin clear and smooth. Bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position for many years in the treatment of cutaneous disorders because of its parasite-destroying property. Nothing has ever been found to take its place in treating the irritable and inflammatory skin affections. While it never fails to subdue the itching irritation and drive the Eczema away and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

Those troubled should obtain at any pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream which is applied to the affected parts in the same manner as an ordinary cold cream.

doubtless true a generation ago, but I think it is safe to say that it is not generally the case today. In the average crossroads store of the mountain country, or in any "general store" of the small mountain towns, you will find as complete a stock of ready-made clothing and cheap dress goods as you would see in a country store almost anywhere else.

Mr. Barton says the mountaineer's songs are sad, and he instances the fact that the pathetic "Barbary Allen" is sometimes sung in mountain homes. There is no doubt about "Barbary Allen" being a sad one, especially as regards its dirgelike tune; but anyone who thinks the mountaineer's musical taste runs to mournful themes ought to hear some of their fiddlers or "banjo-pickers" break loose with "The Wild Horse," "Turkey in the Straw," "Wild Hogs in the Red Brush," "The Old Hen Cackled as She Flew," "Tug Fork," "Brushy Mountain," "Boath' on Sandy," or "Flat Gap."

Mr. Barton's picture of Prof. Frost "explaining to towns like Cutshin and Hellfursartin that there really is a world beyond the Gap." I don't know what sort of town a "like Cutshin or Hellfursartin" would be, as there is no town of either name in the Kentucky mountains—popular tradition to the contrary notwithstanding. Cutshin and Hellfursartin are small creeks that flow into the Middle Fork of Kentucky river near Hyden. Both these creeks are in Leslie county, and Hyden is the only town in that county.

And as for the mountaineer's present state of civilization—or lack of it—let me say that the Kentucky mountaineer, taken as a class, is not nearly so uncivilized as the outside world seems to think. It is true that he plays "seven-up" instead of poker, dances the Virginia reel instead of the tango, drinks "white" liquor instead of "red," and prefers a pipe to a cigarette. While you and I know lots of things that he doesn't know, he will sometimes surprise us by knowing some things that we don't know. For instance, he builds roads, houses, fences, water mills, suspension bridges, "splash dams," and "ripraps;" he is a good blacksmith, harness maker, target shot and logger, an excellent politician, usually a fairly good farmer, and often a quite able preacher or musician.

And as to the towns, instead of considering such wholly imaginary towns as "Cutshin" and "Hellfursartin," look at a few of those that actually exist, and compare them with country towns elsewhere in our land. Jackson, the county seat of "Bloody Breathitt," has two wholesale houses, each of which claims to do an annual business in excess of $100,000. Battytown, in Lee county, has over $15,000 invested in iron street bridges over the small stream that runs through its midst, and it also has one of the largest sawmills in the State. Estill Springs, in Estill county, has long been noted as a health resort. Paintsville, in Johnson county, has brick paved streets, and one of its leading citizens, a native "mountaineer," lives in a residence built for him at a cost of over $10,000. Prestonsburg, with a great steel bridge, built and owned by local capital, and a fine brick college building, now occupied by a Baptist school. Here you will see several very creditable residences, one of which, built at a cost of $50,000, is owned and occupied by a "mountaineer" whose three grown children are all graduates of well-known colleges. From Prestonsburg a horseback ride of thirty-five miles to the west will take you to Hindman, in the very heart of the mountains; here you will find electric lights and an excellent college for young women, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. A day's ride to the south lies Whitesburg, whose court house, brick bank and store buildings, and bright little weekly newspaper are superior to those possessed by many small towns of localities whose people are wont to picture the Kentucky mountaineer as "uncivilized." From Whitesburg ride fifty miles, east and south, over the rugged Cumberland mountain and down the picturesque Cumberland river to the little town of Harlan, still flustered over its recent acquisition of a railroad; take the train here and go down the valley to Middlesborough; here, among towering mountains and in sight of the famous Cumberland Gap, you will find a thriving city of 7,000 people, well-paved streets, handsome buildings, good hotels, a great iron furnace, and a dozen busy coal mines.

There are hidden away in the remote hills and hollows of the Kentucky mountains many people who still live in a very primitive fashion, but, with a few exceptions, they are not nearly so primitive as one would be led to believe by the average story, magazine article or moving-picture play. They are no more "uncivilized" than many of the "crackers" of Florida, the "cujons" of Louisiana, the "hill billies" of Arkansas and Missouri, the "mill people" of Massachusetts, Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas, the "new-made Americans" of Western Pennsylvania or the "East Siders" of New York.

That's all. And let me add that one reason why I am always interested in Collier's is the fact that you so frequently say things with which I don't agree.

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS.

Preparations are being made for a Training School for Sunday School workers to be held in Lexington, Ky., June 11-19, under the auspices of the Kentucky Christian Bible School Association to which the Disciples of Christ throughout the State are looking forward as one of their most important religious events of the year.

Courses will be offered in Bible Study, Religious Pedagogy, Child Study, Sunday School Administration, Missions and Social Service by a strong faculty composed of four college professors and as many Sunday School specialists. A feature of the program will be three simultaneous departmental sessions under competent supervision giving training in the special work of the Elementary, Secondary and Adult Divisions. The morning of each day will be devoted to class work, the afternoon to study, conference and recreation, and the evening to special lectures and the departmental sections.

The faculty as announced by the Dean, Walter E. Frazee, of Louisville, who as State Superintendent of the Kentucky Christian Bible School Association is arranging all the details of the school is as follows:

P. E. Lumley, Professor of Social Service and American Missions in the College of Missions, Indianapolis, Ind. Instructor in Missions and Social Service.

E. E. Snoddy, Professor of Philosophy in Hiram College, but called to the College of the Bible, Lexington, Special Lecturer.

W. C. Bower, Professor of Religious Education in the Bible College, Lexington, Ky. Instructor in Religious Pedagogy.

Miss Hazel A. Lewis, Elementary Superintendent of the Bible School Department of the American Christian Missionary Society, Instructor in Elementary Division and Missionary Methods.

Miss Cynthia Pearl Maus, Associate Editor Bible School supplies, Christian Board Publication, Instructor in Secondary Division.

W. J. Clarke, Adult Superintendent of the Bible School Department of the American Christian Missionary Society, Instructor in Adult Division and Administration.

All sessions of the school will be held in the chapel and class rooms of the College of the Bible while the students will be entertained in the dormitories of Hamilton College.

This is the Third Annual School of this character held by the Association. Over two hundred and fifty students were enrolled last year representing one hundred and nineteen churches. A class of 106 took the complete course and received International certificates, which has the record of being the largest class graduated among the Disciples of Christ. Preparations are being made for over three hundred this year.

IN MEMORY.

The pale horse and its rider visited the home of Arch Conley last Wednesday and took away from him his dear mother. She was 81 years and eleven months old. She leaves ten children—four boys and six girls—and a host of friends to mourn her departure. She was the wife of Henry I. Conley, who died several years ago and since his death she made her home among her children. The funeral services were held at the Baptist Church in Oakview. She had been a member of the Baptist Church for several years, and from there she was taken to the Ashland cemetery and laid to rest. She will be greatly missed in our community.

A precious one from us has gone, A voice we loved is still, A place is vacant in our home, Which never can be filled, God in his wisdom has recalled, The boon his love has given; Although the body slumbers here, The soul is safe in heaven.

A FRIEND.

GLADYS.

The Olivette I. O. O. F. lodge No. 343 will meet at the hall on May 31 at 8:00 a. m., and will march to the Wright graveyard to hold memorial services for deceased friends. Other lodges are invited to attend; also there will be preaching by Rev. James Harvey.

The baptizing at this place was largely attended.

H. C. Hicks and M. F. Hammond were visiting W. M. Wright Sunday. Monroe Webb and Wesley Jordan attended the baptizing at Gladys last Sunday.

The infant child of John Curnutte, of Columbus, O., was brought to Shade Grove and buried on the 24th. The child was a granddaughter of Squire John Hughes.

Lindsey Webb is on the sick list.

We are authorized to announce W. D. O'NEAL, JR., as a candidate for the nomination for Circuit Judge of the 32nd Judicial district, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

"Wedding Nuptials" is the latest addition to our collection of syntactical curios. We are indebted to a neighbor for this gem.

It is quite remarkable that the deaths of Senator Bradley and Col. Worthington, Governor and Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky during the same administration, should occur so nearly at the same time. Col. Worthington died on Friday morning last and the Senator's decease took place on the following night.

The death of Senator Bradley makes a vacancy that will be filled by appointment to be made by Governor McCreary. The new law governing this appointment will not become effective until June 16th and the appointment can not be made until that time. Assistant Attorney General Logan says as Senator Bradley died just seventy days before the primary it will be necessary to nominate candidates at that time and elect in November. He says the Governor's appointee will serve only until the man elected in November can qualify. Bradley's term would have expired next March, so the election for the short term means service about the 20th of November, to March 4th.

Naturally, there is much speculation as to whom the Governor will appoint. Johnson N. Camden appears to be the favorite tip. Hon. James N. Kehoe's name has been proposed by a number of his friends. It is reported that when Hon. R. H. Vansant was approached on the subject of the Senatorship for himself he declined to allow his name to be considered.

The Warth of the Farm Agent.

Fiscal Courts are not especially noted for the good judgment with which they appropriate county funds. Information to the effect that the Fiscal Court of Whitley county has made an appropriation for the employment of a county farm agent is to be welcomed as an evidence that now and then these bodies may be relied upon to do the proper thing.

The last Legislature passed an enabling act which makes it possible for Fiscal Courts to make these appropriations. Whitley is the first of the mountain counties to take this step, and the magistrates who voted for the appropriation have demonstrated their wisdom and progressiveness. Most of the counties in Eastern Kentucky are increasing in population. Some of them in the course of their industrial development are neglecting their agricultural interests. This should not be the case. Some of them already are near the end of their timber resources. They have great mineral wealth, but the coal when once mined cannot be replaced. Their one abiding resource is the soil.

The mountain counties of Kentucky are not now producing enough food-stuff to supply the needs of their population. They are paying out millions of dollars annually for products that might be grown at home. This is a condition that can be rectified by improving the farms, by conserving the soil, by reclaiming the worn-out lands, by adopting better methods of farming and by increasing the production of livestock.

It is just here that the services of the farm agent are valuable. The average farmer has never seen an agricultural college and he pays scant attention to the vast amount of printed advice that is served up to him in various ways. But there are plenty of farmers everywhere who are glad to avail themselves of the services and the advice of the county agent. He lives and moves among them and his practical assistance is of more effect than tons of literature.

No county makes a bad investment by employing a capable farm agent. It has been estimated that every thousand dollars spent for farm agents will give at least $10,000 in better farm returns.—Courier-Journal.

The foregoing is a timely article concerning the county agent, worthy of perusal, but the NEWS, ever mindful of its native county, corrects the statement that Whitley is the first "mountain" county to employ a county agricultural agent. Mr. E. S. Kegley, a practical farmer, employed by the Government and the Fiscal Court, has been in Lawrence county since the beginning of the present year and is doing excellent work.

"THE OPENING OF AN EMPIRE."

The following interesting article was written by M. DeSha Breckenridge, who was with the party of B. & O. and Consolidated Fuel Co. stockholders and officials which made the trip a short time ago through the "empire" he so well describes. It was taken from Mr. Breckenridge's paper, the Lexington Herald.

We have just returned from a trip which we wish every citizen of Kentucky could and would take. From the standpoint of information, of interest and of pleasure, it is one of the most delightful trips that a Kentuckian can possibly take.

Three years ago the Lexington & Eastern Railroad stopped at Jackson, Breathitt county; the Big Sandy division of the Chesapeake & Ohio extended only to Elkhorn City; between the terminus of the Lexington & Eastern and the terminus of the Big Sandy division of the C. & O., a distance of one hundred and forty miles, was a railroad desert. The illimitable supply of coal underlying the mountains, on which stand apparently inexhaustible forests of hard wood timber, was utterly inaccessible. But little different from the condition in which Boone, Crockett and their companions found that country, when they hiked the way from Virginia to the Dark and Bloody Ground, was this empire, underlaid with coal sufficient to supply the world, crowned with forests surpassing any in the State.

Not within a hundred years had there been any increase in the population. The more virile, vigorous, intelligent of the men had scaled the mountains and gone out through the passes to the lowlands, in many cases winning high success and achieving wide reputation, but leaving upon others the burden of existence in the mountain fastness from which they escaped.

He would have been a rash prophet who three years ago would have attempted to draw a picture of the change in these mountains within so short a time. The Lexington & Eastern has been extended from Jackson one hundred miles; its terminus is now McRoberts, a town built within the past three years. Through Shelby Gap, up the Elkhorn thirty-five miles, a railroad has been built to Jenkins, where there are over seven thousand people, and from which is daily shipped thousands of tons of coal.

McRoberts, the terminus of the Lexington & Eastern on the west, and Jenkins, the terminus of the Baltimore & Ohio on the east, are but five miles apart. Instead of an untraveled wilderness between these railroads there is now a macadam roadway across the mountain, over which motor cars make hourly trips. New towns have sprung up as in a night, the very names of which are unknown to many of us of Central Kentucky, so much more rapid has been their growth than has been our groping intelligence.

Wayland, Jenkins, McRoberts, Fleming, Hemphill, Garrett—who of the readers of The Herald know of these towns that have sprung up as if by magic in these mountain counties? Who realize that there have come into these mountains an immigration in numbers greater than all the residents of Fayette county? Who appreciate that from the veins of coal that three years ago were an inaccessible as the coal beds of Alaska there are now being shipped millions of tons a year? How many of the people of Central Kentucky have even the dimmest conception of the wealth that has been poured with lavish hands, guided, however, by wise judgment, into these mountains to secure the coal that is now admitted to be the best coal produced in America?

Not hundreds of thousands, not millions only, but tens of millions of dollars have been spent by the railroads to secure the tonnage, and other millions by the coal companies to furnish the tonnage which the railroads sought so earnestly. Up streams that it seemed almost impossible that even a mule could go, through mountains, over which a goat only could climb, the railroads have penetrated the mountain fastness and are today carrying out train load after train load of coal that is unequalled.

It is difficult to write in moderate terms of what has been, what is being and what is going to be done in that region. All the world yields admiration to the Government of the United States for the completion of the Panama Canal. Promptly, efficiently, honestly, the representatives of the Government, with unlimited wealth at their command, completed the task in the completion of which the French nation failed gloriously. Greater than the accomplishment in digging the ditch to join the waters of the Atlantic and the Pacific is the accomplishment of the work done in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky. And yet it was done without the blare of trumpets, without the acclaim even of the people of the State that will benefit most by its accomplishment.

As far as we know it is the only great industrial undertaking that has been inaugurated and accomplished since the panic of 1907. It marks, as far as we are aware, the only material extension of railroad lines, and the only great development of natural resources accomplished in the past seven years. It is impossible to convey an adequate conception of what has been accomplished to one who has not seen with his own eyes the work that has been and noted the work that is being done. From the smallest to the most important detail equal attention seems to have been given. Nothing has been overlooked, nor has expense been spared to provide for the most economical mining of the coal. Nothing has been overlooked, nor has expense been spared to provide for the health, the comfort and the pleasure of those who mine the coal.

A model bakery, a model abattoir, an unfailing supply of pure potable water, provisions for recreation, schools as good as any in the State, a hospital the equal of any, Young Men's Christian Associations with every provision for the wholesome entertainment not only of the men but of the women, are some of the features of the development, the purpose of which is to secure and retain the most efficient and reliable miners.

Wonderful as has been the development of the past three years, the development has in fact but begun, the mere surface is but scratched. We hope the people of Lexington, of Central Kentucky, of Louisville, will quickly become familiar with that section. Eastern capital has done what has been done; Kentucky capital has as yet participated but little in this development that in largest measure was due to the imagination, the foresight, the honest intent, the genius of a mountain man—John Mayo, who long years ago foresaw with the prescience of a prophet the development of his highlands, and worked for that development with the constant and never failing enthusiasm of the practical man of affairs.

He lived to see a firm foundation laid for the ultimate development his genius foresaw. But it is only the foundation that has been laid; the future will see a growth as wonderful in comparison with the present as has been the change wrought in the past three years.

All of that territory this side of the mountain which separates the terminus of the Lexington & Eastern and the Baltimore & Ohio, by reason of natural lines of trade is tributary to Lexington. There should be closer terms between the people of the Blue Grass and the people of the mountains; such terms will come with greater familiarity between these sections. With better train service, with greater facilities to take care of the trade of the mountains, there should come such cordial relations between the mountains and the Blue Grass that Central Kentucky will help furnish the capital to develop the mountains, and in return the mountains will pour into the Blue Grass an unceasing and constantly increasing stream of wealth.

In an article published after a visit to Jenkins and McRoberts last year, we told of the building of these towns, and the development of the property of the Consolidated Coal Company. We should like now to tell something of the development of the lands of the Elk Horn Fuel Company, under lease to the Elk Horn Mining Corporation, and yet we feel unable to do so. It is beyond our power of description to picture what was a few years since, what is now, and what will be within the next few years.

There is certainly no coal in America, probably none in the world, equal to the Elk Horn coal. The secretary of one of the largest gas companies in Europe after a thorough trial of the Elk Horn coal wrote: "I am sending below figures indicating its qualities for gas manufacture, and I am informed by our chief engineer that it is in all respects a highly excellent coal, superior to any that we have ever obtained from other sources of supply." Last year after a thorough test one of the largest users of coking coal in America gave an order for a million tons of this new coal.

The Elk Horn Fuel Company owns 255,535 acres and has under option 50,000 acres additional, making a total of 315,535 acres. Of this principality there is at present developed but a fraction. The Elk Horn Mining Corporation has a lease on twenty-five thousand acres owned by the Elk Horn Fuel Company, twenty thousand acres of which are in Floyd and Knott counties on the waters of the North and West Forks of Beaver Creek, and four thousand five hundred acres in Letcher county on the waters of Boone Fork of the Kentucky River.

The development on Beaver Creek in Floyd and Knott counties is larger than the development in Letcher county, and from it the Elk Horn Company expects to ship twice as much coal over the Chesapeake & Ohio as it will ship from Letcher county over the Lexington & Eastern and the Louisville & Nashville. But as the development in Letcher county is within easy access of Lexington it is of more immediate interest to Central Kentucky.

The town of Fleming is the center of the production of the Elk Horn Mining Corporation in Letcher county. There are located there some five hundred houses, all erected within the last year. At Fleming are located two of the six mines which the Elk Horn Company has opened in Letcher; two others are located at Hemphill and two at Hayman, all within a few miles of each other. From these mines, the development of which began less than a year ago, there are already being shipped some hundreds of tons a day; within a year the company will be shipping thousands of tons a day, it being the expectation and intention of the officers of the company to ship a million of tons a year from the mines in Letcher and some two millions of tons from the mines in Floyd and Knott counties.

Some faint idea, but only a faint idea, of what this development will mean can be obtained by those who now visit that region. From Fleming on down to Jackson the Lexington & Eastern is building spurs, extending its tracks, and providing the facilities to care for an annual output of many times the present output from the mines now opened. It is a conservative estimate that within five years there will be millions of tons of coal will be shipped from the mines this side of the divide between the waters of the Kentucky and the Big Sandy, and ten millions of tons a year from the other side of that divide.

Hazard, where there are now some half dozen operations, which has increased in population many times in the past few years; Whitesburg, where there are other developments; creeks on which today there are no developments, and along which there are few habitations, will within that five years become as populous as that section of which Fleming is the center. And we of Central Kentucky should endeavor to become so acquainted with that section that we may be of service to it and it to us, for only through mutual service can there come mutual benefit.

FARMER KEGLEY.

The NEWS is glad to note that Mr. Kegley, County Agricultural Agent, is "onto his job" and by his visits and demonstrations and familiar talks with and to the people has awakened and keeping alive much interest in farming and its associated industries. He held two meetings last week, one at Pleasant Ridge and one at Graves Shoals, both at night. On both occasions he had good crowds, and much interest in what he said and did was shown.

Mr. Kegley says he is much gratified to see that more attention will be given to canning this year. He has succeeded in getting the people to realize that tomatoes have a much greater possibility for value as a crop than corn has with fifteen bushels to the acre. Mr. Kegley sees in the interest now being manifested better things for the farmer. It will lead to the formation of community clubs, of district clubs and thus lead to a bigger county organization, that is, to largely increase the membership of the present county agricultural society.

Mr. Kegley desires to emphasize the importance of an early and repeated intelligent use of the harrow. He also recommends the use of the plow in corn even before it sprouts, before the soil is baked by the sun.

He will hold a rally meeting at Buchanan Saturday afternoon, June 6, and at other times and places as may be requested.

DAVID FOSTER DEAD.

David Foster died Tuesday at his home near the head of Catt, near the old Sprinkle place and was buried on the following day. He was a quiet, honest, unassuming man, an excellent citizen and neighbor. His loss is much deplored by all who knew him.

The predisposing cause of Mr. Foster's death is somewhat obscure. About two weeks ago a horse kicked at him and Mr. Foster fell, striking his chest on a stone, but he or no one else was sure that the animal had really kicked him. The fall or the kick caused an abscess to form in his lung and death ensued.

Mr. Foster was buried with the honors of Odd Fellowship, he having been for a long time a member of the craft. The religious services were conducted by the Rev. H. B. Hewlett, of this city.

Mr. Foster was 55 years old.

Advertising in the Big Sandy News is the best investment any merchant can make. If done in the right way, every dollar thus invested will bring you an average of ten dollars. Louisa merchants lose money every time they allow an issue of the NEWS to appear without something to say about the goods that are stored away on their shelves and under their counters. The dull season is the best time to advertise. We will help write the advertisements if you will give us the information about what you have to sell.

Wood's Seeds

Seed Potatoes FOR FALL CROP.

The planting of Seed Potatoes in June and July is increasing to a wonderful extent. A great many farmers claim that they give better crops planted at this time than they do when planted in the spring. Potatoes planted in June and July mature in the cool weather of the fall, at a time when they can be harvested to best advantage.

The Seed Potatoes we offer are put in cold storage early in the season, so as to keep in first-class, vigorous condition.

THOS. SETSER DEAD.

Mackoy, Ky., May 17.—Death claimed Thomas Setser, our most worthy and honorable postmaster, express agent and merchant. He was born March 19, 1831, and reared in Floyd county, Ky., near Prestonsburg. He was united in matrimony to an estimable young lady, Miss Cora Grayson, of Johnson county, about nine years ago and he left three children, two little boys and one girl.

Mr. Setser came to Greenup a few years ago and built a wide reputation as a business man. He will be greatly missed by the public. He leaves an honorable father, mother, loving sister and a dutiful wife and a host of friends to mourn his demise.

His funeral was preached at the brick Union church Monday, May 18, by Elder J. L. Hall, of the Christian Church, an ex-Johnson county minister, and his remains were laid to rest in the brick Union cemetery by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends.

We say dear friends mourn and weep not as his spirit has waited away to its eternal destination and his star still shines among us.

Though cast down we are not forsaken. Though afflicted, not alone; Thou didst give and thou hast taken, Blessed Lord, Thy will be done.

Call not back the dear departed. On the borderland we left them.

Soon to meet and part no more.

When we leave this world of changes, We shall find our missing loved one In our Father's mansion fair.

JOHN C. C. MAYO.

A Few More of the Many Tributes
Written About This Lamented
Kentuckian.

JOHN C. C. MAYO.

The Morehead Mountaineer, edited by Mrs. Cora Willson Stewart, has the following tribute:

"The State of Kentucky mourns the loss of a distinguished citizen, the mountains a devoted and beloved son. No marble shaft, however immense or tall, however bright or shining, can fitly mark his resting place; but the whole range of Eastern Kentucky hills, the land which gave him birth and which he loved, shall stand as a proud monument to John C. C. Mayo. He it was who ennobled and made the world to recognize, respect and revere these very hills, who turned the eye of scorn and derision into one of admiration for his country, who silenced slander and elicited for it the voice of praise. He was ours, and the loss—the great, irreparable loss is ours. The anxiety of the watchers at his bedside was shared by the mountaineers—all of us, on hillsides, in valleys, in caves, and in hollows. Day after day among the hill people the salutation has been, 'How is John Mayo today?' and as he improved or suffered our spirits rose or fell. It has, perhaps, never been given to a private citizen to be so well or so universally loved. It has, perhaps, never been given to the wife of a private citizen to have so many to share her anxiety, or to the widow to have so many to share her grief as has Mrs. Mayo. He was great and true, and we are all his; all mountaineers are akin in time of sorrow and distress, and this great blow is indeed our common sorrow."

"John C. C. Mayo was a Kentuckian, a Methodist, a Democratic National Committeeman, a Colonel on the Governor's staff, a multimillionaire; but first of all he was a mountaineer, with all the traits of a mountaineer highly exemplified in his character. To many he was best known for his marvelous success as a promoter and organizer and a financier; but to us he was best known and most loved for his loyalty to the people of the hills, and his generous giving of himself, and sharing of his means in the development and up-building of this country. Wealth never spoiled him for a moment, nor changed in the slightest degree his plain and simple mountain manner. He employed his wealth as a means of bettering conditions in his country and of elevating its people. Many a church steeple on the hillside and in the valley tells of his generosity; many a mountain school owes to him its existence; while an army of mountain boys, who have become intelligent, useful men, can testify of his beneficence. His name has meant to all a synonym for thrift, industry, courage, perseverance, honesty and benevolence. His patriotism was manifested in every way. The pictures even which adorn the walls of his home today—that home completed so recently and enjoyed by him for so brief a spell—are not the world's famous masterpieces, nor fair scenes of foreign lands; but they are all pictures of mountain scenery, the Breaks of Sandy, the Old Mayo Farm, Jenkins when it was a trackless forest, and other scenes among the hills. When the remains of John C. C. Mayo were conveyed up the Sandy Valley to their last resting place, they were transported over a railroad that his own thrift and enterprise has invited; from the station at Paintsville the cortege marched along a street paved through his own pride and munificence, and the body was borne to a church building under his own careful supervision and largely from his own contributions—the most beautiful church in all the mountains. This portrays but a glimpse of the intricate manner in which his whole life was interwoven with the institutions and development of the hill country.

"The way to mourn and to pay tribute to our beloved dead is to exemplify in our lives the graces which adorned theirs, and to strive to complete the achievements for which they unselfishly strove. John C. C. Mayo in one decade, through his wondrous vision and faith and energy, pushed his country forward a hundred years. Those of us who loved and admired him, can best honor him by dedicating ourselves to the work which he has so well begun, that of developing the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, and making the country more habitable and its people more prosperous, happy and best."

John Mayo's Mighty Struggle.
(Paducah News-Democrat.)

John Mayo was not a soldier on the battlefield, but he fought a mighty struggle against great odds and won his victory. There was no blare of trumpets or brilliant show of military trappings, but there was a fight just the same, and all heroes are not to be found on the battlefield. Somehow it has always seemed to us that there should be as much glory due the strong man who fights on, undisciplined, the silent battle that is his alone, and wins, as to him who grasps his honors at the expense of the myriad dead and dying on a blood-stained battlefield, for it brought development to his State, wealth to himself honestly gained, and the respect and confidence of his fellowmen. We have in mind man-made heroes who have fought less valiantly and gained far less deserving victories.

Way to Senate Open to Mr. Mayo.

Although but few are aware of the fact, John C. C. Mayo might have been in the United States Senate at the time of his death if he had but accepted the toga. It was six years ago when J. C. W. Beckham made his losing fight for the seat in the Senate and William O. Bradley was elected by the Democratic Legislature.

After the Democratic leaders in both the House and Senate saw that Gov. Beckham could not be elected a conference was called in Louisville. In the conference were but half a dozen men, including Mr. Mayo. The conference began on Saturday and lasted until Sunday night. After being shown that he could be elected to the Senate if he would but give the word Mr. Mayo said that it was up to Gov. Beckham and that he would not get into the fight unless Beckham agreed to withdraw and leave a clear field. He was also willing to sidestep reelection and allow Beckham to make the race in 1914. Gov. Beckham after seeing the men who had talked the matter over with Mr. Mayo declared he would fight until the finish and if beaten would come back six years later. Mr. Mayo did not get into the fight and Senator Bradley was elected.—New York Sun.

(The above is a correct statement of what occurred at that time.)

Last fall Gov. McCreary wrote Mr. Mayo a letter asking him to make the race this year for the United States Senate and pledging himself to stay out of the race if Mr. Mayo would run. The Governor also told numbers of people that he would gladly give way to Mr. Mayo.

From a Room-mate.

The following is from the Huntington Herald-Dispatch:

D. W. Frampton, deputy sheriff, who was a room-mate of John C. C. Mayo, at Kentucky Wesleyan College, in 1883 and 1884, describes the noted John C. C. Mayo, Kentucky's wealthiest man, as a "good fellow as a boy in school," and "just a clever country youth."

He was a genius in mathematics and as Mr. Frampton says, "no professor could stump him with a problem." His adding, multiplying and dividing was phenomenally rapid, while in the higher branches of the science it was little more than pastime for him to solve the most difficult algebra or geometry propositions.

He also excelled in other branches of the college work, caring little for society or athletics. Most of his time was spent in studying.

"Many times," Mr. Frampton said, "he declined his belief to me that there were fortunes stored in the hills of the Blue Grass state around Paintsville—around his home."

Gov. McCreary Said:

"He was a very generous man, but made no display of his generosity. He gave liberally to many colleges, churches and schools and took stock in every worthy enterprise which had for its object the development of Eastern Kentucky, and no man with whom I was acquainted has ever been more generous to his party than Col. Mayo. He could have been elected to various offices had he consented to be a candidate when his friends urged him to do so."

"John Mayo possessed every good quality that an honorable man could have and he will be missed by all the people of our commonwealth, who love progress, improvement and advancement and he will be missed in Eastern Kentucky by all who desired to develop this important section. He will also be missed by hundreds of kind, good, laboring people, who always found in him a generous friend and a devoted sympathizer."

"John C. C. Mayo and Mrs. Mayo stood with me and helped me to receive more than a thousand people when the new Governor's mansion was dedicated last December. They dined with me the following day. Then I said good bye to two of the best friends I have ever had in my long public career and no man in Kentucky now mourns the loss of this splendid citizen, this faithful husband, this great business man and this devoted friend, more than I do."

FROM THE FRONT.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, May 15, 1914.—If the editor will grant me the space I will try and state some of the facts about Vera Cruz since my arrival here.

I departed from Louisiana April 20th, en route to join my troop and reported for duty on the 23rd, embarked on the transport on the 25th, and arrived here on the 28th. Just after docking we were initiated by a hurry up order to saddle our horses and go out to the water works as early as possible, a distance of nine miles, to re-enforce the command at that place. It was reported that the Mexicans were going to attack the Americans at that place but they failed to back up their threat and this excitement soon passed over. However, this was a terrible hardship on the men and horses, after getting off an army transport and marching for nine miles through the jungles in a tropical country. After getting back that afternoon we continued in getting our cargo off the transport and loaded up the wagons, then we were on our way but didn't know where we were going. After maneuvering around for some time it was decided that we would go into camp in the outer edge of the city along the outpost lines. My troop is camping in a cocoanut grove which is greatly appreciated by the men as the water around here is very bad and instead of drinking it, we drink cocoanut milk which is very refreshing and not dangerous to drink.

For several days the cavalry was used for patrolling the city and at first there was plenty of excitement for us. It was our duty to locate snipers, arrest all suspicious characters and enforce the law generally. While on one of these patrols we became suspicious of four Mexicans wearing a White Cross insignia on their arms carrying a man on a litter, and decided to examine the party. They tried to keep us away by telling us that they had the corpse of a man who had died from contagious disease. I rode up and gave a couple of blows with my saber and out jumped a Mexican with plenty of life yet. They were snipers and the man underneath the sheet was doing the dirty work.

The cruiser "Chester" did some excellent work in bombarding the Naval Academy. The projectiles would pierce the walls and explode on the inside, tearing things to pieces. They found 64 dead in the academy after the fight.

The effect of the revolution is plainly seen around here. The women and little children of the poor class (peons) are actually suffering; they have learned what mess call means and swarm around the men like bees, begging for what food they have left after having finished their meals.

A few days ago a man from the 28th Infantry got lost and wandered through the lines and was captured and executed by the Mexicans.

On the first of the month I went out with a squad of eight men and an American civilian to get some horses and were cut off from our army and let me say right here we had a high old time getting back to our people; had to use our strategy and get busy.

With the very best wishes to my relatives and friends, I remain,
Very truly,
MART SEE.

WHY SHOULD THE GOSPEL BE PREACHED?

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness." Matt. 6-33. In this scriptural passage the first duty of man is clearly and forcibly set forth in unequivocal language. There is no doubting the spirit or intent of such simple words. Their meaning is so obvious that "way-faring men, though fools, need not err" in their interpretation. When read by men who are in search of Biblical truths, their true import is emblazoned upon the screen of their minds, and a genuine estimate of their great value sinks to the infinite depths of their immortal souls.

But when we have sought, found, and obtained admittance into God's Kingdom, are we then to turn our attention to the perishing things of earth? Or are we to polish and don a Christian armor and do battle for the King of Hosts? Are we to grope in the chaotic night of spiritual ignorance? Or are we to familiarize ourselves with the fundamental truths of His Eternal Word? We rather think that when we have enlisted in the Army of Jehovah we must continue to wear the uniform, drill and keep our camp in good order, lest we be classed as deserters, court-martialed by that lofty Military Tribunal of Zion and sentenced to endless imprisonment.

For the purpose of strengthening mind's knowledge of God's Word, church buildings girdle the earth. Hundreds of thousands of their silent steeples give mute evidence of the infinite love which human beings have for Him who spoke into existence the glittering fabric of their universe. These buildings are dedicated to the service and worship of God. Do men go to them to hear the "glad tidings of great joy" and bask in the celestial light of Gospel Truth? Or do they go there to hear agricultural discourses? In answering the former question, in the affirmative, we would gently and affectionately, but earnestly and firmly reprove the estimable young lad of Berea who deigns to admonish ministers to substitute agricultural lectures for the antique custom of preaching the gospel of the martyred Christ. He verily believes that a sermon on progressive farming would be more potent than a "dry, doctrinal sermon."

There is a great deal of truth in Geo. Washington's words: "Agriculture is the most healthful, most useful and most noble employment of man," but if we should become so absorbed with ideas of farming as to abandon, or even partially forsake, our religious duties, the drift toward barbarity would begin and society would soon crumble into sorrowful oblivion. Such neglect would certainly accrue from the abandonment of gospel preaching. With due regard for all who are striving to usher in a new era of agriculture, and allotting to them their rightful place among the benefactors of the human race, let us not forget that the richest and grandest heritage that can fall to any generation is a system of well organized churches.

If we are interested in the welfare of those who are to take our places in the human arena, let us, while we are making provisions for their material well-being, not fail to remember that they, too, like us, will be subject to the vengeance of the organic laws of God; that they, too, will be fallible and finite and that their most noble efforts and their grandest endeavors will be pregnant with error, like ours.

Take away the Christian's Bible and give him a book on agriculture instead, and you remove the sweetest hope that ever made its home within the bosom of that man. Deprive him of the privilege of hearing his beloved pastor talk about the eternal truths of God and compel him to listen to the speech of an agriculturalist and you cast a mist of darkness over the landscape of his existence. Why? Because you turn to no consideration within the mind of the Christian his desire for eternal life; everlasting bliss; unending joy.

It is the preacher's place to tell men how to get their souls saved, not how to plow; to tell women how to raise their children and how to evade the tortures of that abyss of woe, not how to plant beans and cook cabbage. But we would not, for any consideration, seek to discourage the noble work being done in transforming the agricultural world; let it be advanced with relentless vigor! Only let the preacher preach the infallible gospel of God's love and let the scientific farmer preach scientific farming.

The cause of death was the infirmity of age. She was married to A. J. McKinster 58 years ago and to them were born one daughter and one son. She with her husband and son moved to Kansas 35 years ago and later moved to Oklahoma.

The body was laid to rest beside her husband who departed this life three years ago, and was buried at Geary, Okla. She leaves one son to mourn the loss of a good mother.

Anty Drudge—"Theodore, you tell your mother to use Fels-Naptha Soap next Monday, and I'll guarantee you'll never be late for school on account of the washing."

One of the great-est blessings of Fels-Naptha Soap is its quick action. Fels-Naptha Soap, in cool or lukewarm water, will thoroughly loosen dirt in your clothes. While the clothes soak you are free to do other work. Then rub lightly, rinse and the clothes are ready for the line.

THE HOME CIRCLE AND ITS INTERESTS.

Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join The Home Circle at Evening Tide.

BRINGING UP OF MOTHERS.

A young person has been writing an article on this bringing up of mothers. Thirty years ago mothers were not brought up; they just grew. They wore caps early, gave up dancing when their children were in short frocks and knickerbockers, and developed all sorts of incorrect ideas about chaperone and flirtations. Formerly the young idea was trained the way it should go. Now the old tree is pruned and pared into shape. Girls have assumed the responsibility of looking after their mothers. Mothers kept to see to a well ordered house, coax refractory fathers and attend to borage. They must, moreover, be ornamental, look well at the head of the table, dress becomingly, keep up with the fashions, look nice when the girls take them out with them, and smile encouragingly at the young men. Nor are their morals forgotten. Frequently one hears a girl say: "It is an interesting show, but not one I'd care to take my mother to."

HOLD ON, BOYS.

Hold on to virtue—it is above all price to you, in all times and places. Hold on to your character, for it is, and ever will be, your best wealth. Hold on to your hand when you are about to strike, steal or do any improper act. Hold on to the truth, for it will serve you well, and do you good throughout eternity. Hold on to your tongue, when you are just ready to swear, lie, or speak harshly or use improper words. Hold on to your temper when you are angry, excited or imposed on, or others are angry about you. Hold on to your heart when evil persons seek your company and invite you to join in their games, mirth and revelry. Hold on to your good name at all times, for it is much more valuable to you than gold, high place or fashionable attire.

A young woman should be in heart what she seems to be in life. Her words should correspond with her heart. The smile of her face should be the smile of her heart. The light of her eye should be the light of her soul. She should abhor deception, she should loathe intrigue, she should have a deep disgust of duplicity. Her life should be the outspoken language of her mind, the eloquent poem of her soul, speaking in rhythmic beauties the intrinsic merit of inward purity. Purity antecedes all spiritual attainments and progress. It is this first and fundamental virtue in a good character, it is the letter A in the moral alphabet, it is the Alpha of the eternal state of soul which has no Omega.

The terror that a mother feels lest she may lose her baby often clings to her through life, as it did to the aged woman of ninety-seven years, who, when they told her that her son of eighty was dying, said, "Ah, was I me! I said we could never raise that child." To merely raise a child is not much to boast of; but to send into the world honest, true non and women, blessings to the community in which they live, is indeed an honor. To do this, something more than food and clothing, or education and amusement are required; they must take in truth and honor and tenderness for others at their mother's knee, and acquire habits of industry and economy as they grow in years.

The heart that is filled with bitterness will give vent to it in words. It sees nothing bright or beautiful because its vision is clouded. Words are a good test of temper and habit of thought. As "To the pure all things are pure," so to the malicious and ill-tempered all things are black, unlovely, and of ill repute. Words are also the signs of thought, and if the thoughts be kind and good the words will be kind and gentle, free from malice and uncharitableness. There is nothing that so refines the face and mind as the constant presence of good thoughts.

Carpets and chairs are not so valuable as boys and girls. Dust is less to be deplored than a blemish on a child's character. Open your doors and windows, make the home attractive to the children, give them the pleasures due them and they will be contented and industrious, and more than that, they will be so much in love with home that it will take a strong attraction to draw them hence.

It is impossible to preserve good looks with a brood of bad passions feeding on the blood, and a selfish, disdainful spirit enthroned in the will, as to preserve the beauty of an elegant mansion with a litter of swine in the basement, a tribe of gnomes in the parlor, and owls and vultures in the upper part.

Learn to meet your friends with a smile. The good humored man or woman is always welcome, but the dyspeptic or hypochondriac is not wanted, anywhere, and is a nuisance as well.

Wealth consists not in store of riches but in contentment and serenity.

HOW TO AVOID POTATO SCAB AND DRY ROT.

These two diseases are prevalent in Kentucky, and now is the time to lessen their injuries on the crop of 1914. If they are to be lessened. Scab is a fungus disease resulting in a roughness of the surface of potatoes, when severe leaving most of the outside floured, corky and black. When used for seed, such potatoes are likely to cause scab on the new crop, and are unfit for planting if one wants clean skinned potatoes. If but slightly affected they may be disinfected by soaking them for two hours in thirty solutions of water and formalin, and after treatment it is only necessary to lift the sack out, drain out the fluid, and spread the potatoes out to dry before cutting them.

Dry Rot is also a fungus disease. Potatoes sometimes appear to be perfectly sound, yet when cut show a brown line of varying thickness just within the skin and often following the greater part of the circumference. This is the work of a dry rot fungus, generally, in Kentucky, a species known as Fusarium oxysporum. Such potatoes ought always to be rejected. They are certain to convey the disease to the crop. No treatment will reach the fungus within the potatoes. When buying potatoes it is well to cut some of them to see if the disease is present.

Both scab and dry rot fungi remain in the soil for a time, hence old potato land is likely to produce more badly diseased potatoes than new land.

(1) The selection of sound seed, (2) treatment with formalin or corrosive sublimate, and (3) rotation, are the means by which both of these pests may be avoided.

KENTUCKY CROP REPORT AS OF MAY FIRST.

"After a drouth, a good crop year" is an old saying that is believed by most farmers. In truth there seems to be some scientific basis for this. The first crop report for the year 1914 would indicate that this year would be no exception to the rule. Probably never in the history of the State was there a more promising outlook for a "good crop year" than at the beginning of this season.

The amount of barley originally sown was 77 and the condition of both rye and barley is given at 98. The corn acreage planned is 91 per cent, while 76 per cent of the plowing intended for corn was done May 1st. Planting is now in full swing with conditions favorable. Deep plowing has been practiced this year more than ever before and favorable weather for the next few weeks will insure a large acreage of corn in a first class seed bed. The oat acreage planned is given at 89 with 80 per cent of it sown May 1st.

While the dark tobacco crop planned is only at 79, the condition of plant beds is given at 96. The acreage planned of Burley is given at 81 with the condition of plant beds 91. There is some complaint of insects and cut worms injuring the tobacco beds.

The pastures are in unusually good condition. The condition of blue grass is given at 93 with every promise of a large crop of blue grass seed. Clover is given at 85, alfalfa at 93, and orchard grass at 92.

Fruits of all kind have escaped destruction by freezing and the apple, cherry and plum crop is unusually promising. Pears and peaches suffered some from late frost, especially in the central part of the State, however, we will have more than three-fourths of a pear and peach crop. The strawberries are in good condition with promise of a bountiful yield. Ninety-five per cent of a potato crop is planted.

Live stock of all kinds came through the winter in good condition. It is estimated that 4 per cent of the horses died in the last 12 months, 3 per cent of the mules and 3.7 per cent of the cattle. The loss of sheep is estimated at 6 per cent and lambs at 10 per cent. The greatest loss is from hog cholera and it is estimated that 11.3 per cent of the hogs of the State were lost by this disease, some sections of the State being entirely free from this disease, while the loss runs as high as 50 per cent in other sections. This report indicates that there is an unusual amount of attention being paid to live stock. The number of brood mares used in increasing and the number of mules used upon the farm decreasing. It is also worthy of note that a great deal more attention has been paid to alfalfa, this spring than ever before. The amount of ground limestone used upon the clover land has greatly increased.

Summing up the first report of the year, one cannot but be impressed with the determination of the farmers to make the coming crop the greatest ever grown in the State.

WARNING AGAINST DANGEROUS POWDERS.

The Department of Agriculture has information that the public is purchasing salicylic acid in large quantities and is using it in the canning of fruits and preserves. It is sold in one-fourth pound packages, and the practice has grown to an enormous extent. The packages are sold under fanciful names but contain only salicylic acid and boracic acid and are sold at prices much in excess of their real value.

In the directions for use, the housewife is told to fill the jar with the fruit or vegetables, cover with water and add a teaspoonful of the powder. It is true that these powders may prevent the decay of the fruit or vegetable but they also encourage uncleanly or careless work, and their excessive use may be attended with very serious effects upon the health. Salicylic acid is a medicine of the greatest value in acute articular rheumatism and certain other diseases. It is well known as a poisonous substance, and one of the evils which may accompany its use is derangement of the digestion. It is therefore plain that its extensive use in food may lead to disturbance of digestion and health.

It is entirely practicable to put up both fruits and vegetables in such a manner that they will keep indefinitely by sterilizing the products by means of heat, and there is no excuse for running the risk by the use of preserving powders. The department of Agriculture has issued the following Farmers' Bulletins on canning and preserving.

F. B. 383 Canned Fruit, Preserves and Jellies.

F. B. 359 Canning Vegetables in the Home.

F. B. 521 Canning Tomatoes at Home and in Club Work.

These bulletins, which may be obtained without cost by applying to the Division of Publications of the Department, give exact directions for canning and preserving foods without the use of preserving powders or canning compounds.

HARROW YOUR CORN.

The beneficial effect of a well prepared seed bed and the use of good seed may be wholly or partially offset by improper or insufficient cultivation, is the advice of crop specialists of the Department of Agriculture. Proper cultivation is an important factor in crop production. Cultivation should begin immediately after planting by running once or twice across the rows with a weeder or section harrow. After the plants come up at least two additional cultivations should be given with either the weeder or harrow in the case of corn before the regular cultivators are used. Run diagonally across the rows with either of these implements, using the section harrow with the teeth slanted backward with an angle of 45 degrees and repeat a week later at right angles with the first cultivation.

The use of the weeder or section harrow is strongly advised for the early cultivation of corn and many other crops. It is best to use the weeder on very loose or sandy soils while the section harrow is preferable on clay or buck-shot soils. This early cultivation with the weeder or harrow destroys all young grass and weeds and leaves the soil in fine condition for thinning. The use of the section harrow for the early cultivation of corn is comparatively recent but is rapidly becoming general. One of the great advantages in its use, in addition to the excellent work done, is the extra amount of land that can be cultivated in a given time.

PIKE COUNTY NEWS

COUNTY SCHOOL FOR PIKEVILLE.

The county of Pike has purchased property in West Pikeville to the value of $7,500 for the purpose of building a new county high school. This means that two new and thoroughly modern school buildings will be erected here during the coming summer. It was the intention of both the town and county authorities originally to purchase one lot and consolidate the schools. When it was learned later that the town authorities favored purchasing the Robt. Walker lot on Fourth street, the county authorities disapproved the plan and made separate arrangements for building their own school, and to this end the Ira Williams property in West Pikeville was at once taken over. The plans for this work have not been made public, but both buildings will be erected this summer.

SUNSTROKE KILLS MAN.

Walter Elam, aged about 55, died at Elk Horn City Monday afternoon from a nervous collapse thought to have been superinduced by overheating while at work at the railway station loading freight on wagons in the forenoon. Elam had been suffering from neurotic trouble for a great while, and his age and weak nervous condition were in a large measure responsible for his falling an easy victim to the heat. He leaves a family.

CUT TO DEATH.

A fatal cutting affray took place last Saturday at Lookout, Ky., on Marrowbone creek. The trouble is said to have been the result of a misunderstanding between Oscar Puckett and Jim Farmer that had existed for years. According to the story, Puckett, while intoxicated, came to Farmer's house at Lookout, and demanded an apology or some other reparation, which Farmer refused. A quarrel followed, and it is said Puckett drew a large knife and stabbed his victim several times about the face and throat, from the effects of which he immediately died. Puckett made good his escape; and, although officers throughout the county have been on the lookout for him he has not been taken.

CHILD DROWNED.

Joe Huffman, aged 15, was drowned near the spoke factory in the Big Sandy river last Sunday afternoon at 1:30. He with a number of other boys had gone to the river for a swim, and the others, knowing that the unfortunate child could not swim, cautioned him not to get beyond his depth. By accident he stumbled over an obstruction and was thrown into deep water. His cries for help brought his cousin, Archie Huffman, who endeavored to save him. But the drowning boy seized his rescuer by the throat, and he narrowly escaped drowning, also. None of the youths were good swimmers, and becoming panic stricken they failed to save him. The body was taken from the river 30 minutes later and removed to the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Fannie Hatcher, on Second Street, where Coroner Cavins held an inquest. The boy was taken from the water, but with no success.

The funeral was held from the Presbyterian Church, and interment in the Hildard Williamson plot in Pikeville cemetery.

CONDEMN PROPERTY FOR NEW SCHOOL.

The residence property of Robt. Walker on Fourth street, adjoining the public school grounds, was made the subject of condemnation proceedings last week. Mr. Walker was quite willing for the county to have the property, but the title to it being vested in two infant children, proceedings under the Eminent Domain privilege were necessary to effect a transfer of the title. The court appointed G. W. M. Hackney, E. E. Trivette and G. W. Greer as a committee to assess the value of the property, and the report to the court Saturday set the value at $4,500.

A new school building will be erected on the property, and the present building will be repaired and used as a recitation hall for the junior grades. The new building will be erected this summer, and the work of construction may start immediately.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON.

The baccalaureate sermon, which formally marks the closing of the school year at Pikeville College, was delivered by Dr. A. P. Kell, professor of language at the Presbyterian Church Sunday evening. All the churches of the city discontinued their evening services, and a large congregation heard the eloquent sermon which was founded on the scriptural text, "Yet a little while." John 16:16. The sermon was a scholarly and practical discourse, and it comprised much that is helpful both to the graduating students and the public. It was one of the really able sermons Pikeville people have heard.

WOMAN SUICIDES.

Mrs. Nancy Justice blew her brains out with a revolver at her home on the Levisa Fork last Monday morning. Last fall she won a verdict for $10,000 in damages against the Catlettsburg Timber Co. for the accidental death of her husband, David Justice, on Greasy Creek, while he was riding a log truck doing his work. She left a note telling the cause of her self-destruction, but the contents of the note have been kept from the public by her friends. Just before she fired the fatal bullet into her brain her youngest son discovered her intention, and tried in vain to save her by wresting from her hand the cartridge which she was about to place in the revolver. The loss of her husband, it is said, was the real cause of her act of self-destruction.

GRADUATION RECITAL.

The graduation recital of Miss Lillian Fannin, assisted by Miss Grace Chatfield, at the Presbyterian Church Tuesday evening was a great art success. Both Miss Fannin and Miss Chatfield are pupils of Miss Emma Taekaberry, instructress of music at Pikeville College, and to the perfect training of their teacher is due much credit for the success of the program, which is as follows:

1. Piano Duet, Polonaise Militaire in A Major, Fr. Chopin, Op. 40, No. 1, Op. 64, No. 2.
 2. Valse in C sharp Minor, Miss Lillian Fannin.
 3. Prize Song from Wagner's Meistersinger, Transcribed by Franz Bendel, Miss Grace Chatfield.
 4. Prelude, Chopin, Op. 28, No. 15, Miss Lillian Fannin.
 5. Two Movements from Symphony (Allegro) Beethoven.
 6. Liebestraum No. 2, Liszt, Miss Lillian Fannin.
 7. Berceuse Lullaby, Op. 13, No. 7, Miss Grace Chatfield.
- A great ovation was accorded the young ladies upon their appearance and many congratulating friends expressed their hearty appreciation to both teacher and pupils at the close of the recital.

SCHOOL HOUSE FOR ROAD CREEK.

County Supt. of Schools Geo. W. Potter let a contract Tuesday for the building of a new school house on Road Creek, a tributary of Marrowbone. The grounds on which the new building is to be erected were purchased for $75.00, and the building will be modern and well-lighted frame costing about $800. It will be built at once.

LETCHER COUNTY AND WHITESBURG.

What is Happening in this Rich Coal Territory of Kentucky.

Whitesburg, Ky., May 26.—Despondent owing to ill health Enoch Crase, aged 27, young farmer of the Frank's Creek section of the county, attempted suicide by slitting his throat with a razor late Saturday evening, inflicting wounds that will prove fatal. Crase, rather than be adjudged insane and be committed to the asylum, attempted to take his own life in the rash manner. The two brothers of Crase came over from Appalachia, Va., and they agree to see over the insane man. He is a member of a good family.

Official information from Washington announces the appointment of editor N. M. Webb, of the Whitesburg Mountain Eagle, for postmaster here, following the endorsement of Senator Ollie M. James. The appointment of Editor Webb meets with the hearty approval of at least three-fourths of the Democrats and Republicans of the county. He will immediately give bond and as soon as he is commissioned will enter upon his duties. No better choice could have been made.

The Elkhorn Baseball League has been organized, comprising Jenkins, Burdine, Dunham, McRoberts, Fleming, Raymond and Hemphill teams, and interesting games were played Sunday—the opening games. Much interest is manifested.

Word from Jenkins is to the effect that Manager Everett Drennen, of the Consolidated Coal Co., has resigned the management and will become manager of The Stonea Coal & Coke Co., of Stonea, Va., east of here in the Virginia coal fields, effective at once. The thousands of people employed in the vast development work are loath to lose Mr. Drennen from their midst.

Telegraphic advices from Norton, Va., announce the death there Saturday of Mrs. Polly Craft, nee Adams, aged 60, after a long illness. She leaves many relatives, brothers and sisters in this county and a large circle of friends. Her death came unexpectedly.

A deed is said to be pending between members of The Letcher County Coal & Improvement Co. here and The Semp Consolidated Coal Co., of which C. B. Semp, Virginia Congressman is at the head, for several thousand acres of rich coal lands in Letcher county, lying along Upper Retcherhouse and Colly Creek sections. If the deal goes through there is likely to be some new development projects to start soon. James P. Lewis, J. H. Frazier and George Hogg comprise The Letcher Coal & Improvement Co.

Aunt Henrietta Craft, Craftsville, and Little Wright, Master, each sold small tracts of mineral and coal lands during the past week at a large price. The former received about $4000 for about 30 acres. It is reported that The Semp Consolidated Coal Co. are preparing for a big development near the Craft tract.

In Jenkins, this county, Deputy Marshal John M. Riddle arrested A. C. Anderson and a young man named Jackson on charges of bootlegging moonshine whiskey. They were brought here and given hearings before U. S. Commissioner Samuel Collins.

Aunt Sarah Fairchild, aged about 80, one of the best loved women of Letcher county, died at her home on Sandlick Creek, near here, last week, after a three days illness. She was the mother of S. G. Fairchild, Mrs. George M. Adams, of Sandlick, and Mrs. Robert Blair, of Whitesburg, besides many other near relatives.

Whitesburg, Ky., May 27.—In a drunken row at Letcher county, a free-for-all fight took place in which Morgan Collier, aged 18, son of W. B. Collier, merchant, was stabbed three times pretty seriously in the back by a man named Collins, of Rockhouse. A number of arrests will be made.

The drought which has been prevailing for several days grows sorer and garden vegetables, potatoes, early corn, etc., are suffering. Much of the corn crop has been plighted out owing to the inability for the farmers to break their ground. Unless there is rain within a few days great damage will result.

S. T. Frazier will soon begin the construction of a first class theater building in this city. The building will be thoroughly modern and up-to-the-times. Whitesburg continues on the forward march of improvement.

There is still considerable talk of another new development of the big coal fields of Letcher county, to be started at once near Sergeant, on the Tilden Wright place, by The Semp interests owning large coal land tracts in Letcher and Perry counties. The plant, it is said, will be of considerable magnitude. Letcher county is rapidly becoming a great industrial center.

"I feel like a new person. I have no more heavy feelings, no more pain, don't belch up gas, can eat most anything without it hurting me. I want to be working all the time. I have gained twenty-four pounds."

"People that see me now and saw me two months ago seem astonished. I tell them Parana did it. I will say it is the only remedy for spring and all other ailments."

No argument is needed for Parana. Just get a bottle and try it. If you have catarrh of the stomach you have a serious trouble. If you want a remedy it would be very easy make the experiment. Before you've taken Parana a week you will find yourself better, then you will need no testimonials to convince you.
